Project Title: Information Systems Independent Audit
Date: October 6, 2008

The scope for this team has changed radically since the project was originally conceived. The original 5 acre field was to write an RFP for an independent audit which would provide an assessment of current and future needs for information technology provided by Owens to its students, employees and faculty. The Provost and Academic Services have since determined that rather than an independent audit, the various gradebook/portfolio software currently used by the College and other existing software should be evaluated and a single system should be recommended. A committee made up of Jason Stokes, Zia Rahman, Scott Coffman and Cleveland Henderson has reviewed seven different gradebooks and has recommended that Blackboard should be Owens sole gradebook/portfolio software.

This team is requesting to retire and let another team or the ITS department implement this change.
